Acute metabolic acidosis (AMAs) has a number of serious and potentially life-threatening complications. Among these are impaired kidney function and oedema formation. We hypothesized that changes in acid-base physiology of the kidney following acute metabolic acidosis might be associated with an impaired capacity for water excretion. We studied changes in renal function in 13 sea-surface workers with an acute metabolic acidosis as a result of a prolonged period of hypercapnia. Renal function was studied through clearance experiments and plasma concentrations of cations and anions were measured. An acute metabolic acidosis was associated with a decrease in renal tubular reabsorption of phosphate and bicarbonate and an increase in urinary pH. A renal 'acid load' resulted in a redistribution of urinary bicarbonate and phosphate towards the more acid-permeable distal tubule. The renal response to an acute metabolic acidosis was not altered by administration of either aldosterone, furosemide, captopril or verapamil. We conclude that the sea-surface worker as a result of his experience with prolonged hypercapnia has an impaired

Julien Astrologyl.com Julien Astrologyl.comQ: Calendar day to current date using Excel function How can I convert the day of a particular calendar date to a date that is the current date? A: The answer is a CONVERT() function. CODE =CONVERT(DATE,"18/02/2009",105) VALUE =DATE(2009,2,18) A: First thing that comes to mind is TIMEVALUE: =TIMEVALUE(A1) or you can use the very handy QUERY function: =QUERY(DATE(2009,2,18),"Select A where (DATE(A) = DATE(now()))") Or the DATEVALUE function: =DATEVALUE(A1) The former functions require that you put the value in the right format, and have the date formatted correctly for TIMEVALUE. If your value is not a date, then CONVERT will do what you want. A: Based on the MSDN documentation, for Excel Date, time, and number formats, the following is a list of the possible date formats: # # day-name month-abbrev. day-number month-name month-abbrev. # year hour-minute-second AM/PM time zone #
