What is HyperMotion Technology? Real-life players were filmed using motion capture suits as they performed high-intensity activities during matches, using data collected through microphones, cameras and accelerometers to create FIFA 22 gameplay which incorporates a rich and natural representation of the action on the pitch. Motion capture data is also used for scouting, training preparation and the creation of digital animations. FIFA 20 introduced a new “Flexible Skill Stick,” which is based on actual player movements during a match in real-time, allowing players to create custom dribbles, make passes and strikes. This was a completely new approach for the FIFA series, and provided FIFA players with a fresh, new way to connect with the ball and the pitch. FIFA 20 introduced the “Matchday Feel,” which was inspired by a particular matchday atmosphere and featured a new UI and new camera angles, as well as a new commentary system. The experience was meant to give players an insight into the game behind the scenes, as they experience some of the key moments and new challenges of an upcoming match. What has been added to FIFA 22? FIFA 22 introduces, for the first time, the FIFA Touch Challenge, a new FIFA Challenge Mode which can be accessed as a free DLC (downloadable content) from the Nintendo eShop, PlayStation Store, Xbox Live and other digital distribution channels. The FIFA Touch Challenge is set in the UK-hosted FIFA World Cup 2018™. All 60 players participating in the tournament are playable characters and they appear on foot or by vehicle in a single match. Fans can train their FIFA skills in this mode and try out the FIFA Skills game, which is new to the series.

In the FIFA Touch Challenge, teams will not only have to come up with the perfect tactics, but they will also have to use real players from the squads participating in the FIFA World Cup™ in their custom formations. The teams can also play with a full-strength lineup, rather than the limited squad which is available when using your generic players. Fans can also experience all kinds of other gameplay options, such as 4v4 and 6v6 matches, the “Sideline Modifier” and more. We can’t wait to see what new features and content FIFA 22 will bring. For more information about the game, be sure to check out our FIFA 22 preview. For more about FIFA, be sure to
