Figure 11-1: Be sure to sign out of your AutoSave documents so you don't lose important work if you choose to use an older version of Photoshop on a different computer. Customizing how you view the file you open in Photoshop is very important for efficient manipulation. Opening a file in the browser is a standard practice. Photoshop allows you to configure a number of options regarding how the file is displayed. You can change the way you view the file when you open it by following these steps: 1. Choose Image > Open. 2. In the drop-down menu, choose Preview. The Adjustments panel opens, as shown in Figure 11-2, with the most recent adjustment applied to the layer as a thumbnail. 3. Use the small Adjustment Brush tool, as shown in the bottom image in Figure 11-2, to adjust the preview as desired. FIGURE 11-2: You can preview the file you're working on to see how the changes you're making are affecting the file. If you want to apply the changes you just made to the view, click OK. Otherwise, click Undo to discard your last adjustment. You can also open the Options dialog box to specify how you want to view the file. When you open a new document, by default you see the default preset, Web, in the Viewing tab of the Options dialog box (see Figure 11-3). You can choose from the presets View, Home, and Print. FIGURE 11-3: You can specify your own view of a file before opening it. After you complete an editing project, you can preserve your finished product as a file. You can save a file as a Photoshop PSD file or as a JPEG, TIFF, or other format as long as the file type is compatible with the current version of Photoshop. When you save a file as a JPEG, TIFF, or other image format, the original file is saved, but it's combined with a copy of the edited file. If you save a file as a PSD, your edited file is saved separately so that you can always return to it. Click the triangle next to the file you want to save (where it says File Type: Save for Web) to specify the file format. You can work on multiple files at once if you press Shift+Ctrl+D (Option+⌘+D on the Mac) or click was also a remedy available to the respondent for the purposes of the case. If the respondent's actions were undertaken in bad faith, for example, he could still have been punished for some other infraction. Therefore, I find that the respondent has failed to establish a violation of his right to equal protection. V. REQUISITE STANDARDS FOR DISMISSAL. A dismissal for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion is proper only if it appears that the plaintiff can prove no set of facts in support of his claim that would entitle him to relief. Haines v. Kerner, 404 U.S. 519, 521, 92 S.Ct. 594, 30 L.Ed.2d 652 (1972). In making this determination, the complaint must be read liberally. LaBounty v. Paine, 952 F.2d 971, 976 (3d Cir.1991), cert. denied, ___ U.S. ___, 113 S.Ct. 539, 121 L.Ed.2d 486 (1992), and all allegations in the complaint are accepted as true. Hishon v. King & Spalding, 467 U.S. 69, 73, 104 S.Ct. 2229, 2232, 81 L.Ed.2d 59 (1984). The essential question is whether the claimant is entitled to offer evidence to support the claims made in the complaint. Scheuer v. Rhodes, 416 U.S. 232, 236, 94 S.Ct. 1683, 1686, 40 L.Ed.2d 90 (1974). *1571 Section 1983 provides a cause of action against a person who, acting under color of state law, deprives another of rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. In order to prevail in a § 1983 action, a plaintiff must establish that he has been deprived of a right secured by the Constitution and laws of the United States. Baker v. McCollan, 443 U.S. 137, 140, 99 S.Ct. 2689, 2692, 61 L.Ed.2d 433 (1979). A claim under § 1983 cannot be based on a deprivation of due process if the constitutionally protected right that has been denied is not that of the prisoner against whom the procedure is employed, but that of the prisoner against whom the deprivation has occurred. An Australian man who was convicted of the murder of a baby girl has been released from prison after serving eight years. Kerry Button, 27, was sentenced to life in jail in June 2008 after he stabbed 10-month-old Sophie Dorothee Bertolotti 17 times as she slept in her cot outside her home. The girl was asleep when she was murdered during the early hours of the morning. Auckland, New Zealand The horrific crime led to the prosecution becoming the first to charge a woman in Australia with killing her own child, and the first to charge a man with murder since the age of 18 was lowered from 21 to 18 in 1977. Button, from Brisbane, was not able to appeal his conviction, but earlier this week the Court of Appeal quashed the conviction in a non-appealable decision. After being released, Button was to face a parole hearing next year. The Queensland Attorney General, Mr Ron McAuliffe, has said he will oppose Button's parole. However, the Brisbane Coroner has said he is confident Button will make a "positive contribution to the community". Family's loss "There are many unknowns about his life outside the prison environment," Mr McAuliffe said. "The family of Sophie Bertolotti, the community and the Justice Department would not wish to see his release into society." The lawyer who represented Button at his 2008 trial said he did not want to comment on his client's release until a parole board granted him the right to do so. Button's victim's family said they had suffered "a very bad time". "We didn't know if they were going to be able to get out and that is what we have to face," Bertolotti's mother, Nicole said. "Unfortunately we have lost the ability to not be able to face it, to keep going forward." She also admitted there were still certain times when she was in a bad state of mind. "I just have a certain part of my life where I am struggling to come to terms with what has happened," she said. "We go back to 2008 when we still haven't told [Sophie] what happened. We still can't believe it." "It was such a traumatic thing, it took us a long time to come to terms with, it still takes us time. "It's been five years since
